Bk.1 reader to appreciate the day in all its facets, in every moment, without thinking about tomorrow. It is the most famous of Horace's odes. It has the tone of a conversation happening in front of a stormy sea, the dialogue is between a mature man, made wise by age and experience, and a girl with a Greek name, Leucònoe ("with a white mind"), she is in a hurry to live her future, on which she has projected many expectations.

All the way through this poem, Horace fits particularly catchy phrases into the choriamb. So vina liques ('strain the wine') is a dum-di-di-dum phrase, as is dum loquimur ('while we are speaking'), and even the multi-syllabic Greek name for the girl in this poem, Leuconoe.

Comments about Bki:Xi Carpe Diem by Horace. Geoffrey Plowden (1/9/2016 4:55:00 AM) As a further comment, while I appreciate the great effort that has been put into these translations of Horace's Odes, still they are unnecessarily loose in places and thereby lose many of Horace's finer points and subtleties. By Horace, David West. Read preview. Synopsis. Horace is a great poet, much loved and imitated in the past, and in recent years much better understood as a result of the learned commentaries of Nisbet and Hubbard (1970, 1978). and Syndikus (1972, 1973). Yet today he is little read.
